The people that made it all happen

VALERIE BROWN
President

President's welcome

Welcome to the 1989 Valley of the Moon Vintage Festival and our community. This annual event is unique – a community effort, held in the heart of our neighborhood. The Board of Directors, all loyal volunteers, labor throughout the year to provide fun and enjoyment for all ages during this special weekend. You can find them throughout the Plaza, in vintage costumes, wearing "Directors" ribbons. Stop and say hello. Introduce yourself. These people direct over 200 volunteers to make everything run smoothly and efficiently.

Thank you for deciding to join us in celebrating the harvest, the agricultural foundation of our valley.

Patrons' tasting opens festival

Tonight from 6:30 to 9 p.m. the Valley of the Moon Vintage Festival begins with its gala wine tasting event for patrons.

This event is the Vintage Festival Board of Directors' way of saying "thank you" to the patrons who donated $20 (or more) to support the Festival weekend activities.

Without these donations, there would be no Vintage Festival.

The tasting, held at the historic Sonoma Barracks "rain or shine," will feature Sonoma Valley products including wines from some 24 Sonoma Valley vintners and other local product such as cheese, French bread, salsa and sausage.

Each patron will receive a commemorative blue-stemmed wine glass which symbolizes the Sonoma Valley appellation.

Music for this year's event will be provided by Jazz, Etc., a versatile group that performs regularly for bay area festivals and picnics.

As has been the case for the past seven years, this event is again a sell-out and some 650 patrons and guests are expected to attend. No tickets are sold at the door.

Interested parties who were not on this year's patrons list may write to Vintage Festival Association, P.O. Box 652, Sonoma, CA 95476 for information about next year's event.

The wines that will be poured at the Patron's Tasting are listed at right.

Herb Caen to ride in parade

By Teri Shore
Index-Tribune Staff Writer

"Mr. San Francisco," Herb Caen, will rule Sonoma for a day when he reigns as Grand Marshal of the Valley of the Moon Vintage Festival parade on Sunday.

The veteran San Francisco Chronicle columnist will share the limelight with The Sonoma Index-Tribune publisher, Robert M. Lynch.

The venerated lord of three dot journalism will pry himself from his beloved city-by-the-bay to join the Valley's salute to vines and wines, riding through town, smiling and waving like royalty to the many spectators expected to line the streets during the spectacle.

Though he has been a regular visitor to the Valley over the years, his participation in the parade came as a surprise, even to Caen himself.

"Somebody asked me and I can't even remember who it was. I must have been feeling very vulnerable that day because I found myself saying 'yes.' Probably because I've never been a Grand Marshal and I don't know what a Grand marshal does," Caen explained.

BIG PARADE organizer Jason Breaw, administrative assistant to Don Sebastiani at Sebastiani Vineyards, is credited with the coup.

"But Sonoma sounded good. Sonoma in September. It has a nice sound to it. Alliterative. Light, dry, good bouquet, good nose. I got a good nose. So I'm looking forward to being there," Caen said.

This enthusiasm comes despite the fact he claimed wine wasn't his beverage of choice.

"I'm not much of a wine buff, I'm a vodka drinker," he joked.

The 73-year-old seems well preserved, whether its in wine, vodka, or otherwise. He's taller and lankier than you might imagine and possesses the quick wit and animation of someone 20 years younger.

CAEN began visiting the Valley in the 1940s and '50s, finding Glen Ellen and the Plaza his two favorite haunts.

"I used to go into Glen Ellen when I was a drinker," he reminisces, a favorite pastime of the nostalgia lover. "There was a bar there. We'd go in and get the eye from the locals. They didn't like our fancy language. We stopped going there because we thought we were going to get clobbered the next time we came in. The place (later) burned down. It was an old Hell's Angel bar. I should know better than to go into a Hell's Angel bar. It was scary."

Caen was born the same year Jack London died, 1916.

"He left and I arrived. Not a very good trade for the world."

Caen calls the Valley his "backyard."

"I go up there to swim, play tennis, walk around, go up in the canyons and catch poison oak like everyone else", he said.

The canyons he explores are likely on the property of longtime friend David Bouverie, namesake of the Bouverie Audubon Preserve in Glen Ellen.

"Usually he tries to get a bit of rest," said Bouverie, "He comes up with a beautiful lady, usually."

And when they go out on the town, "if he enters a nightclub where there's a band, Mr. Caen likes to sit down at the drums."

Caen said he used to frequent the Swiss Hotel often in the old days and the old Sonoma Mission Inn, when it was still "funky."

FUNKY is a good descriptive term for the office he's occupied for many years. Cluttered with memorabilia, piles of newspapers, pictures, plaques, cards and the odd trophy are stacked haphazardly along the walls of his corner of the Chronicle building. Like his own little piece of the city, an archeological treasure, it's a fortress of fond memories and a grand central station for flying facts and innuendo.

There's never a shortage of information for the column. Caen's assistant, Carole Vernier, helps him sort through the onslaught of paper and phone calls constantly deluging his office.

But make no mistake, Caen writes the column himself.

He arrives at the office between 9 and 10 every morning. At 11:15 he starts to write and by 1 p.m. the column is finished.

Lunch is an important part of the day and he usually meets with someone who is sure to supply an item for the column. Their casual luncheon invariably takes him to one of San Francisco's renowned gourmet restaurants.

After lunch, it's back to the office where a proof of the column is checked for corrections and length. Most evenings, Caen attends a party of some official function where he

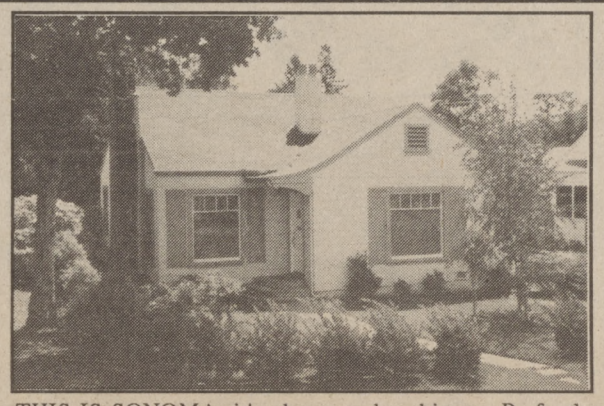
SIMPLY CHARMING

ONE OF THE CUTEST HOMES WE'VE SEEN. An older home full of warmth and charm and updated with all the modern conveniences. Well built and beautifully remodeled. Hardwood flooring. White picket fence and a darling front entry. Large willow tree provides shade and privacy for the backyard. It's adorable and affordable. $169,000

EASTSIDE GEM

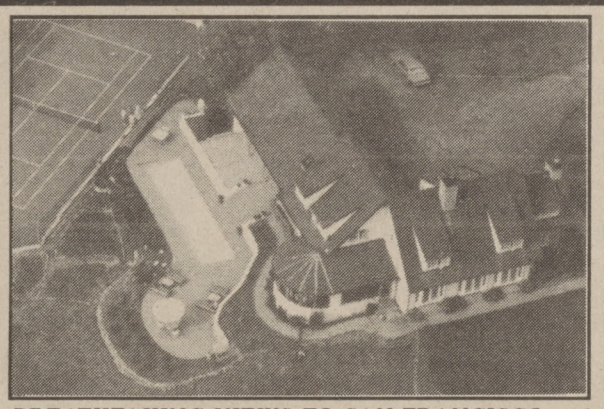


THIS IS SONOMA, it's charm and ambiance. Perfectly located in the heart of the Eastside. The home has been beautifully restored with all it's charm intact. It's better than original. Gleaming hardwood floors. Bright and sunny. There's a detached garage and a lovely yard. Recently reduced. $298,500

COLONIAL ELEGANCE

IT'S NEARLY NEW but looks like an authentic colonial farmhouse with it's wrap around porch. Luxurious master suite with a sitting room, fireplace and sumptuous bath on the upper level. Two more bedrooms downstairs. Gourmet kitchen, family room, formal dining. Beautifully maintained and decorated. $379,000

HILLTOP HEAVEN



BREATHTAKING VIEWS TO SAN FRANCISCO and beyond. Gorgeous land nestled in the hills with a view from every window. The magnificent home is a European-style Cape Cod. Country aura with wood and imported tile. Interesting and sophisticated. 4 bedrooms, study, large recreation room. Pool and a clay tennis court. Sensational! $950,000

YOU MIGHT SEE anything in the Vintage Festival Children's Parade 2 p.m. Sunday on Spain Street.

Children join the grape stomp fun this year

If you've ever wanted to crush grapes the old-fashioned way and feel juice squishing between your toes, the grape stomps at the Vintage Festival offer the perfect place to try.

A new children's category has been added this year, so the whole family can compete in the juicy contests. The fun starts on Saturday, Sept. 23, at 11 a.m.

Teams consisting of one stomper and one helper will converge at the Plaza amphitheatre. Stompers will jump into huge wine barrels filled with 25 pounds of grapes while the helper will collect the juice into gallon jugs provided. Six teams stomp at a time compete for three minutes each.

The number of children's teams will be limited to the first six entries. Only 18 adult teams will be accepted.

The Sonoma merchants stomp will be held on Sunday at noon.

Last year the father-son team of Patrick and Drew Galvin won the open competition, said Eric Morrison, stomp coordinator. Landmark Landscapes won the merchants' prize. Neither team filled a gallon jug.

"It's hard to get the juice out of the barrel," said Morrison. The juice flows from the barrel to the jug through a narrow tube.

Winners will receive a trophy and the top teams will go on to compete at the Sonoma County Harvest Fair.

Community Center Fair a block away

A judged flower show and outdoor garden display, craft sales, a gem and mineral exhibit, and sale and a country kitchen are among the attractions at the Sonoma Community Center's Vintage Festival Arts and Crafts Fair Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Only a block and a half from Sonoma's Plaza, the historic 70-year old Community Center building at 276 East Napa Street is the site for the annual craft show and sale which will feature Christmas ornaments, crochet and fabric crafts, handpainted china, ceramics, wicker baskets and more.

VALLEY OF THE MOON Garden Club once again will serve food in its Country Kitchen. Summer Festival T-shirts will be on sale.

"Parking is plentiful, the food will be great, and the exhibits varied and wonderful," Rose Murphy of the Community Center said.

Non-stop free entertainment for all ages in Sonoma Plaza

Something for everyone is the entertainment theme for this year's Valley of the Moon Vintage Festival, Saturday and Sunday inthe Sonoma Plaza in Sonoma.

Local and Bay Area entertainers will perform continuously from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Musical highlights on Saturday include the 20-piece Cal Alumni Band playing swing, blues and latin music; Tudo Bem, a three-member band that plays a variety of music from golden oldies to reggae to rock 'n' roll sambas, and; David Wheatley, keyboardist from Los Angeles, who returns to the festival with music he describes as "contemporary instrumental music influenced by jazz, classical and new age."

Sharing the entertainment platform on Saturday are Bill Houston's turn-of-the-century music; pianist Richard Neiss; David Michels, 14-year-old local magician; Magic Pearl Puppets; clownHowdy California; and the Fabulous Feet Dance Studio, which will dazzle audiences with tap, jazz and Hawaiian dance routines.

On Sunday, Sonoma's own Showcase Band makes its sixth appearance at the Vintage Festival with its special variety of music that includes songs in six languages, making them a hit in ethnic dances, as well as country and western, oldies rock 'n' roll, standards from the '30s and '40s, and much more.

From San Francisco comes David Hardiman and his well-known San Francisco All-Star Band that has been playing for a variety of events in the Bay Area for over 12 years. The band plays in the tradition of the Duke Ellington and Count Basie bands and features unique song stylist, Ms. "Sweetie" Mitchell.

Cajun and blues music by Gator Beat, East Bay Banjo and the River Choir Mardigals complete Sunday's sounds. With music in the background, Scorby the Clown and Jest-in-Time Theatricks will provide clowning juggling and other acts to entertain the whole family.

Strolling around the Plaza on both days with their own brand of entertainment will be stitlwalke, Carla Lee; Mara and Her Magic mandolin, and; andLos Tres Bohemios, a mariachi band.

DAVID 'MAGIC' MICHEL
Works his wizardry Saturday at 11 a.m.

Classics at theater

The original silent version of "The Mark of Zorro," starring Douglas Fairbanks, will be screened 8 p.m., Saturday and "The General," starring Buster Keaton, will be be shown 4:30 p.m. Sunday at Sebastiani Theatre. Bay Area organist Bob Vaughn will accompany both silent films. He will also present "In the Wine Country," a silent short, with each film.

Tickets, at $5, benefit the theater's restoration.

Health is a Journey, not a Destination...

The human body has a remarkable capacity to keep itself alive and healthy. This innate intelligence concerning self-preservation, in a way, makes us our own "best doctor." We can choose to help our bodies become and stay healthy by following some very basic principles: 1) Develop good nutritional habits; 2) Exercise regularly; 3) Get adequate rest; 4) Have a positive mental attitude; and 5) Keep the nervous system free of interference so that the body's energy can travel unimpeded to each and every cell. Chiropractic assists us in our journey of health by helping us put these principles into practice.

The staff of Adams Chiropractic Offices believes that the function of the health professional is not to simply treat effects, but to educate and assist in the principles that cause health. This elevates the individual consciousness toward personal involvement. Health is a result of doing the natural things. Disease then becomes more the exception as health potentials increase.

Adams Chiropractic Offices is proud to have been a part of Sonoma since July of 1966 when James H. Adams established his office at 853 Broadway. In September of 1973, Dr. Adams and his staff moved into their present location at 101 Andrieux Street (at the corner of First Street West). There are presently three doctors on staff to assist you with your health care.

Dr. James Adams is a 1962 graduate of the noted Palmer College of Chiropractic. He received his bachelor's degree after attending New College of California and Blackhawk State College, Moline, Illinois.

Dr. Kenneth Ruff joined Adams Chiropractic Offices after graduating from Cleveland Chiropractic College in 1979. He had previously attended Cerritos College and the University of Maryland to receive his bachelor's degree.

Dr. R. Wesley Adams is a 1987 graduate from Palmer West College of Chiropractic. He received a B.S. degree at Brigham Young University and joined his father's practice in April 1987.

Recent research continues to increasingly support the position of Chiropractic Science. Through gentle manipulative adjustments and state-of-the-art therapeutic techniques, Adams Chiropractic Offices offers a unique approach to preventative and supportive health care in addition to symptomatic relief. Dr. Adams and his staff members are a team of professionals who are dedicated to helping you on your journey of health.

keeps a sharp eye and ear open for news.

Over the years, Caen has also written 10 books about San Francisco, among them; The San Francisco Book, Baghdad by the Bay, Don't Call it Frisco and One Man's San Francisco.

Last year he celebrated 50 years as a columnist, a milestone marked by the newspaper with a special section on his life and experiences.

"I've been here too long, but I'm not going to quit," Caen said, "What would I do? Where would I go for lunch? Once you're out of the paper you're forgotten."

To what does he attribute his longevity and success?

"I've just got good genes. I work hard and I don't get much sleep and I'm' 73 and I feel pretty good. I still play tennis, I play baseball and I play around."

What more could a fashion savvy woman want or need? Clothes that look terrific, are easy to care for and offer a fabulous selection of flattering options!

Firemen's Water Fight Saturday

Don't miss the exciting Firemen's Water Fight Saturday on Spain Street. The wet and wild competition between Sonoma Valley fire departments begins at 4 p.m.

Acknowledgements

The Valley of the Moon Vintage Festival Board of Directors would especially like to thank the people and businesses listed below who have given their time, money and merchandise in support of this year's Festival. Lists like these are never complete. To everyone, including those we may have missed, please accept our special thanks!

Those deserving special thanks include:

Robert Arnold, Bob Carver, Bank of America, Dugan's Mortuary, Gundlach-Bundschu, Vera Hagler, Lucky Stores, New Wine Ringers, Father Tom Parker, Phil Pels, Off-Broadway Cleaners, Dennis O'Neil, Sebastiani Vineyards, Sonoma Cuisine Society, Sonoma Tops and Trophies, Sonoma Mission Inn, Sonoma County Parks and Recreation, Sonoma Valley Community Hospital, Sonoma Valley Fire Departments, Sonoma Valley Chamber of Commerce, Sonoma Valley Visitors Bureau, T.J.'s Sonoma Grill.

Don't miss the Flower Show

Flower displays and judging, plant sales, drawings for kids and adults as well as tasty sandwiches, desserts and beverages are some of the things being sponsored by the Valley of the Moon Garden Club during the Vintage Festival.

But you'll have to walk down the street from the Plaza to the Community Center to get in on the fun. The garden club will be headquartered there during both days of the event.

Green thumbs will display their best specimens and sell extra plants and clippings at great prices. Some may even go for nothing, according to Mark Weil of the club.

Outstanding plants from three local nurseries will also be shown.

For 25 cents a chance, kids can win toys and other goodies from a grab bag. For 50 cents, adults can win a park bench, pruning shears and other gardening equipment.

A vintage for 1989 Festival

A commemorative Vintage Festival wine has been produced for the first time in the history of the event. The 1987 Zinfandel, made by Sebastiani Vineyards, bears a label designed by local artist Michelle Smith featuring the festival logo. A limited supply of 1,000 bottles will be sold exclu-sivey at the festival, Sept. 23 and 24, in the Plaza.

Why Adobe Drug?

Personal hometown service has been our trademark since 1951, when Ray and Idah Duer first purchased this drug store when it was located in the Salvador Vallejo Adobe on the Plaza in Sonoma. From that tiny (17 x 51') space, where the first day's receipts totalled $4.29 and where Ray Duer still rolled pills by hand, Adobe Drug began.

1951 in the Salvador Vallejo Adobe

Idah and Ray Duer

Today, 38 years later, Adobe Drug has evolved into a full-line pharmacy and has expanded to offer every kind of merchandise the busy consumer needs without having to shop out-of-town. Ray's son Ron and partner Dan Phillips and their staff are still committed to the same ideals Ray Duer had long ago, however – to offer Sonoma customers prompt and professional help while never forgetting their role as "Sonoma's Hometown Pharmacy."
